Social Ecological Relational Value Statements

There are landscapes that say something about who we are as a community, a people

I often think of some wild places whose fate I care about and strive to protect, even though I may never see them myself I have strong feelings about nature (including all plants, animals, the land, etc.) these views are part of who I am and how I live my life

Plants and animals, as part of the interdependent web of life, are like 'kin' or family to me, so how we treat them matters My health, the health of my family and the health of others who I care about is not necessarily dependent on the natural environment.

Humans have a responsibility to account for our own impacts to the environment because they can harm other people

New Ecological Paradigm Statements

